U. S. Border Patrol assists in Douglas school education

DOUGLAS, Ariz. -- In an effort to enhance the Douglas educational community, the United States Border Patrol Tucson Sector will launch the Justice for Schools Program in the Douglas area. The Justice for Schools Program allows the Border Patrol to donate computers and computer equipment to local schools and educational programs.

Recognizing the importance of the early education of the community's children, the Border Patrol will be donating computers to the Lestonnac Kindergarten and Preschool. This week the Lestonnac Kindergarten and Preschool will receive twenty Pentium Class computers with color monitors and operating software. This upgrade will replace obsolete systems and allow for the use of current educational software in the school's curriculum.
